THE DUNCAN CASE.

Tells His Story.

The Brother Of the Murdered Girl

Some Very Queer Circumstances Which He Is Unable to Explain-The Investi-The murder of Addie Duncan, just over the Mahoning county line, demands a thorough investigation. Coroner Booth of Mahoning county has been at work on the case and increases the mystery by refusing to give any information. This mystery business and keeping news away from the reporters very seldom aids in bunting down a murderer. The coroner would do far better if he would follow the style far better if he would follow the style adopted by Coroner Openhimer; give the reporters all the news and in return get all that they are able to gather. The Youngstown Vindicatorsays:

"I hope the Eternal will strike me dead, if I killed my sister Addie."

Those were the words that John Duncan spoke to a Vindicator man as he stood with hand uplifted, but with no tremor to his words, each being clear cut and utter-with hand uplifted, but with no tremer to his words, each being clear cut and utter-ed with solemn impressiveness. There was no reason for Duncan ex-pressing such words only the fact that he claimed the newspapers were giving him the worst of it and he wanted the reports contradicted.

About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon,
John Duncan came out from the barn AT THE DUNCAN HOMESTEAD at Berlin and greeted a Vindicator representative cordially. He is a powerfully built man, with heavy features, protruding jaws, little restless eyes that move incessantly, but he is not what would be called a repulsive looking man. On request he readily conducted the reporter to the place where Addie Duncan was found dead, and with great volubility told all the details. He seemed unaffected by his sister's death, but anxious to tell all he knew about it. He is a good talker, and related his story as though he had it learned by heart. As he stood leaning on the fence beneath a plum tree and directly at the place where he alleges that she must the place where he alleges that she must have fallen, he told the story of finding the dead body of his sister in a manner utterly devoid of any expression of feel-

John Duncan's story is as follows, substantially: Addie had been picking chips and limbs in the orchard nearby. She did not come home on the evening in question

THOUGHT OF IT until next day. On that morning David until next day. On that morning David Louer was over talking with Sam Duncan in the yard and only a short distance from where the body was found. After the talk was over, John said to Sam: "Come Sammy, let's go and fix up them fences." The brothers then departed, taking hammer and nails along. When noon arrived, John suggested that they go home, but Sam said Addie was not there and they couldn't obtain anything to eat. and they couldn't obtain anything to eat.
John, however, declared that he could fix something. So home they went. John rode on horseback, and when he arrived at the house drove the animal to the well,
which is between the house and the fence,
in order that the animal might drink.
While the animal was denking John sit. While the animal was drinking, John still sat on the horse's back and noticed the pigs up in the corner near the little shed, beside which the

BODY WAS FOUND,

and while gazing in that direction saw something blue there too. Said he, at this point of the narrative: "Just as soon as I saw that blue thing I knew it was Addie." He then went down there, found the body, and notified Sam of the fact. Such was the story he told of the circumstance, right at the spot where Addie lay.

On being questioned more closely Duncan admitted that his had trouble with Louer about sheep which the latter claimed he (Duncan) stole and cut their marks off, but denied that Addie knew anything about it and claimed it was exaggerated.

about it and claimed it was exaggerated. In conversation further he denied em-phatically that he ever "had a word" with phatically that he ever "had a word" with his sister or that he ever threatened her. In talking about the case he went into the house and brought out a newspaper stat-ing that he was not being treated rightly and afterward when alone with the report-er, in the little summer kitchen, raised up his hand and solemnly called on his Maker in the words name above TO STRIKE BIM DEAD if he killed his sister. He asked that such reports be corrected and said that "the editors could be put through for it."

The "theory" advanced by John Duncan that his sister climbed the fence to prune the plum tree and then fell, seems to be lacking in every essential detail. The tree is not pruned, only a few twigs being broken off by those visitors anxious to have a relie from the scene of the terrible death. It would be impossible for a person to climb up to the tree and fall to the place and in the position in which the body was found; it would even be impossible to fail from any position on the fence to that place. The only way it could be done would be by standing up on the feee, holding to the roof of the little shed and out and face downward to the earth.

But the most curious feature of the whole case is, why was not the body of Addie Duncan discovered before, if it lay there all the time? It seems to be an utter absurdity to suppose that it lay there all fornoon with men walking about the yard without seeing it. The back door of the house used the most for entrance and exit facing towards the place, and the well in use very frequently is still nearer, while the distance itself is only a few yards.

The coroner still retains silence except to give the Vindicator credit for its work in the case. It is known, however, that that official sent Constable Williams out to the locality to-day to summons Mathew
Dixon to testify. DELIBERATELY JUMPING

Dixon to testify.

The grand jury meets a week from to day and there may be developments.

ILLEGAL FEES.

Queer Returns Made by Alliance

Justice Trail and Constable Koch Go Contrary to Law. The Justice Renders a Verdict Exempt

ing the Company From Blame But Does Not Say What Company. Justice Madison Trail, of Alliance, bas rendered his verdict in the death of Aaron Holm, who was killed in the P. Ft. W. & C. yards at Alliance, on April 8, 1891.

The verdict is a document that it would be well to frame and keep as a relic. It says no one in the employ of the company was to blame for the death of deceased, but fails to mention what company is referred to. It has been charged that the officials of the P. Ft. W. & C. railway requested that Justice Trail hold the inquest instead of sending for the coroner, The verdict is of no account, does not fix the blame, and does not even tell in what yard the accident occurred. There is little use of holding inquests if this kind of verdicts are rendered. John H. Opendimer was elected coroner of Stark county for two years and is ready to hold all inquests. It is not right that justices of the peace should be allowed to hold inquests. especially when such verdicts as this one are rendered. When there is a violent or mysterious death the coroner should be notified.

The peculiar feature of the verdict of Justice Madison Trail is the fee bill attached. All of the costs amount to $18.70 Of this $8.70 goes to the Justice, $4 to Constable C. W. Koch, and $6 to the witnesses. The items given are not according to law and this matter needs investigation.

The Constable's bill reads:

Under the law a coroner is entitled to ten cents a hundred words for taking testimony. This is what is meant by record $2.25. In the record filed by Justice Trail there are 786 words, which would entitle him to 79 cents. Just what he means by depositions of four witnesses at 40 centeach, is not known, and it is hard to figure it at $2.40 as Justice Trail did. Coroner John Openhimer was seen this afternoon and said he did not see how a bill of $2.40 could be returned for taking the depositions of four witnesses at 40 cents each. He said he never put in a return for taking the depositions of witnesses, and didn't believe it was allowed by

In the fees of Constable Koch there are also some irregularities. The law allows 25 cents for the first subpoena and 10 cents for each additional one. There were six witnesses in this case, which would make it figure 75 instead of 85 cents. For making copies the constable is allowed 25 cents each. Six times 25 is $1.50 instead of $1.75.

The verdict of Justice Trail is as follows: "On April 8, '91, there being no coroner within ten miles, information was given to me, Madison Trail, a Justice of the Peace of Lexington township, of Aarto his death by violence, had been found at Alliance." Then gave

THE DUNCAN CASE.

All the Indications Seem to Point to Murder-The Latest.

It is learned from a reliable source that at the autopsy held on the body of Miss Addie Duncan, it was discovered that the food in the stomach of the deceased which had been eaten at supper the night previous to the finding of her body, had not yet commenced to digest, proving that she must have met her death a short time after eating supper on the evening of her disappearance, and seeming to prove also that she was at home at supper time, and not away as John Duncan says.

It was also found that the back of her head had received a severe blow, probably from a blunt instrument.

All indications point to a murder having been committed, but as yet no testimony has been adduced tending to fasten the crime on the supposed perpetrator. Coroner Booth is determined to push the investigation until some positive results are attained, and it is probable that the grand jury, which meets next Monday, will be called upon to investigate the mystery .- | Youngstown Vindicator.

THE SOLICITORSHIP FIGHT.

The Friends of Mr. Roach Claim That He is the Legally Appointed Solicitor.

The Decision of the Council Giving the Mayor the Right to Appoint is Hald to be a Confirmation of the Appointment.

The friends of Mr. Roach claim that he is now the legally appointed solicitor of the city and he will proceed to file his bond and enter upon the duties of the office unless reasons can be legally shown against such a course. The law provides that in case of a vacancy, if no election be ordered, the Mayor shall, with the consent of the Council, fill the vacancy by appointment. The Council refused to call an election, and by a vote of nine to three asked the Mayor to appoint. Although they refused to confirm the nomination, it is held that the asking him to appoint signified their consent to any appointment which he should make. There is a disagreement among the lawyers on this point but the Mayor states that in his opinion Mr. Roach is the legally appointed Solicitor, and will be sworn in when his bonds are filed. The opposing faction can then take whatever action they may see fit to oust Mr. Roach from the office. Mr. Roach likely will file his bond and take the oath of office immediately, as the Mayor states he will not make any other appointment, as he deems it would be illegal for him to do so. If Mr. Roach can be shown not to be the legally appointed Solicitor, an election will likely be held, although some of the councilmen favor hiring some one from time to time instead of having a regular Solicitor. The matter has indeed become complicated.-[Alliance Leader.

The motorneer on an electric car coming up the street, noticed him and sounded the gong but Hoover who was enclosed in the wagon did not hear the bell until the car was within a short distance of him. He turned the horse quickly to one side but before he could get clear of the track the front wheel of the yehicle was struck by the car. The wheel and shafts were knocked to splinters by the collision. The horse taking fright started to run but was caught by Clem Burwell before doing any damage. No one was injured.

Charges Preferred Against David Byers of the Union Hotel.

An Attempt Made to Suspend Him From the Dunkard Church.

He is Charged With Using Profane Language--- A Report That the Case Will be Decided in Favor of the Hotel Man.

Trouble exists in the Dunkard church. near Louisville, and one of the members of the conservative body of the church is now having to answer to charges preferred against his character. David Byers, proprietor of the Union

Hotel in this city, is a pillar of the church and has long been identified with the Dunkards. He has lately had considerable trouble with some of the members, and they preferred charges against him which, if substantiated, will cause his connection with the church to terminate. Some time since a member of the church was in the city and went to the Union Ho tel. He and Mr. Byers were soon engaged in a controversy, which ended by Byers throwing the man out of the door. This action of Byers' was one of the charges made against him before the legislative body of the church.

A charge was also made that Byers used profane language, to wit: "Damn" and God damn."

There was also an effort made by some parties to have Byers answer to the charge of approaching girls and women who work at his hotel. It is said that this charge was not brought forward by his accusers, as they didn't have sufficient evidence to prove their assertions. A committee was appointed by the members of the church to take the testimony of those who made the charges. This committee has investigated the matter thoroughly and will make their report to a conference of the church which will be held tomorrow.

A NEWS-DEMOCRAT reporter was in formed today by a member of the church that the committee had already prepared their report and that it was favorable to Byers. This statement was not given officially, but it is probably the fact of the case. If the committee report that there are no grounds for the charges made against Byers, that gentleman will in all probability bring civil action in common pleas court against his accusers, and ask damages for defamation of character. If this comes to pass, interesting developments may be looked for.

It is stated that the breach first started through the settlement of an estate left in trust to Byers. The settlement was not satisfactory to all parties concerned. The decision of the investigating committee will be made known tomorrow.

lamage was done to any other property. It is a mystery how the bed caught fire, as the room has not been used for some time, and no chimney is in any way connected with the room. James Baxter, of the fire department, while handling the blazing bed, had his hand quite painfully burned. Considerable complaint is being made about the manner in which the department are notified of fires. Yesterday when the telephone message was received for the fire in Otto Glessen's residence, the party telephoning stated that the blaze was in North Cherry street, and this morning they said the residence was at the corner of Piedmont and Third. Par ties should be careful to locate the blaze accurately.

A Better-Half Secured for a Consideration of Three Hundred Dollars. BATH, N. Y., April 27.-Isaac Bassett widower, of Avoca, N. Y., aged 72 years, has just procured a wife through a matrimonial agent. The bride is Mras Lydia A. Gage, a widow, aged 68, of Hornellsville, N. Y. A few weeks ago Lewis H. Wagner told Bassett that he ought to get married, that he was getting old and feeble and, being without near relatives, should have some one to look after his property. The old gentleman readily fell in with the idea. Tho next question was to procure a bride. Wagner proposed to furnish Bassett a wife for $300. Bassett accepted the of-fer and Wagner secured Mrs. Gage for him. In the meantime a deed was made by Bassett conveying all his real estate to the future Mrs. Bassett. This was for security of the note supposed to have been given in satisfaction of the services rendered by Wagner. The marriage came off as was agreed upon. Superintendent of the Poor Richtmeyer, hearing of the above through his attorney, convened a com-mission in lunacy to inquire into the old. man's mental condition, and the above facts were brought out.
